

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY

The school district has spared no expense to offer the latest in technology for students. State of the art computers in classrooms and campus labs support academic instruction and offer opportunities for career training. Assistive technology is widely available to enable most students to benefit from computer technology. In the information age, students at Burlington County Special Services School District are given every opportunity to develop their technology skills. Additionally, we offer a variety of technology training options where students are issued skills transcripts upon completion of their programs of study. Students are also afforded the opportunity to take specialized exams leading to industry recognized certifications.
